Signs to Guide Visitors through Wildflower Country

Wildflower Country Incorporated is pleased to showcase the new interpretive signage trail to enhance the visitors experience through Wildflower Country.

Exploring Wildflower Country – Wildflower Way is a project that has been developed through partnerships within the Shires and Councils within the region and features a series of 21 interpretive sites that span from Dalwallinu through to Geraldton.

The trail stretches 390km and highlights the diversity of the people and towns along the way. Each of the 21 sites features an informative interpretive panel with an artistically designed steel sculpture that adds depth to these unique and often humorous stories told throughout the trail.

The Wildflower Way passes through five attractive and welcoming towns. Four of these – Dalwallinu, Perenjori, Morawa and Mullewa have the charm of the best of small rural communities, while the fifth, Geraldton, is a bustling regional city.

Each has its own attractions, with walk trails, historic churches, local museums, short drive trails and historic sites which are just some of the places visitors can enjoy along the way.

"One of the great things about the trail is that it's been designed so that visitors can discover each site at their own leisure, rather than follow a typical self-drive trail. Each of the 21 sites are well sign posted, making it easy for visitors to find while giving them the flexibility to pick the one's of interest. This project is a great example of the history and working life of Wildflower Country and of what can be achieved when local Shires and Councils work together" said Mrs Rebecca McCall, Chairperson of the Wildflower Country Committee.

In addition, visitors can also learn more about Exploring Wildflower Country through the new Wildflower Country website (www.wildflowercountry.com.au) and Facebook page, which features detailed information about the flora and fauna on show in the region, as well as an event calendar and a travel blog from visitors who have experienced the trail. "It's fantastic to see the website available for tourists to learn and experience more about the hidden gems along the wildflower way. We have many travellers wanting to share their stories and experiences, so the website and Facebook page are an important part of involving visitors in the experience of this special part of Western Australia" said Rebecca McCall.

Proudly supported by:

A very big welcome to James Valentine Dwyer, born recently to Matt and Jaz . A little brother for Audie, grandson for Jill and Greg, nephew for Laura, Caroline and Ben, cousin for Lily and Safin.

MEDIA RELEASE

2013 GWN7 Top Tourism Award Finalists Announced!

The Visitor Centre Association of Western Australia (VCAWA) is delighted to announce the finalists of the prestigious GWN7 Top Tourism Awards.

For the first time, this year saw the 15 entrants enter in two categories, either for the Top Tourism Award or for the Top Tourism Award for Population Under 5,000. Three finalists have been selected in each category and are in the running for the prestigious honour of being named a Top Tourism Town in 2013.

Judges deliberated hard over naming the finalists from an excellent field of entrants from all over the State but today have announced that the finalists are:

Top Tourism Award: Busselton, Denmark, Margaret River

Top Tourism Award for Population Under 5,000: Bridgetown, Dunsborough, Kalbarri

In addition, all of the towns who nominated are eligible for the West Australian Regional Newspaper Special Category Awards which include:

- Heritage Award
- Cultural Award
- Website Development Award
- Management & Staff Training Award
- Community Relations Award
- Environment Award
- Special Events Award

The judges will also be awarding the RAC Travel Services Business Planning & Marketing Award and the Vanguard Press Judges Award.

Now in their 24th year of the Awards, the VCAWA and GWN7 are extremely proud to once again be recognising the importance of Visitor Centres and the Tourism Industry in Western Australia.

"Judging such a diverse range of towns from all over the State is no easy task – the level of entrants is increasing each year" according to the Chair of the judging panel, Robyn Fenech.

"We were very impressed with the standard of submissions - the passion that Visitor Centres and towns put into their tourism product really shone through. Every year this process reinforces for the judging panel, the diverse range of tourism opportunities that WA has to offer and we can't wait to visit the finalists to experience our extraordinary State".

Each of the six finalists for the 2013 GWN7 Top Tourism Award will receive a site visit from the judges and the winning entrant of the GWN7 Top Tourism Award will receive from GWN7 an airtime package valued at $25,000 to utilise in support of their overall marketing activities to attract visitors to their area. The winner of the Population Under 5,000 category will receive a $5,000 airtime package with GWN7 as well.

The award winners will be announced at the GWN7 Top Tourism Award Gala Dinner on Thursday 20th September in Armadale, which forms part of the Annual Visitor Servicing Conference.

The Visitor Centre Association of WA is a not-for-profit peak industry body, representing more than 102 Visitor Centres and sub-representation of approximately 4,500 tourism businesses throughout Western Australia.

For further enquiries regarding the 2013 GWN7 Top Tourism Awards, please contact Lisa Hoskin, Admin Officer for the Visitor Centre Association of Western Australia on 1800 134 112.
